MOANNA MOWER

Director of Staging + Design

Moanna's background is in fashion, retail and interior design at The Fashion Institute of Technology in New York. After working in the Fashion Industry for over 10 years, she took her love of sewing and created her own home-based interior design workroom in the mid-nineties while living in Portland, Oregon under the tutelage of renowned ASID designer David Hill. It was at this time she discovered her passion for interior design and her love for creating beautiful spaces.

After moving across the country over a dozen times, Moanna and her family have settled in Long Grove where she became an accredited staging professional. In addition, she has served as a Board Member of the Chicago Chapter of The International Association of Home Staging Professionals including a term as President. She also volunteers with the Long Grove Historical Society. Moanna is excited to be leading the new design and staging division at PAXEM, INC.

Moanna enjoys solving "design dilemmas", and creating happy and productive spaces no matter the client's lifestyle or budget. She prides herself in the relationships that she cultivates with her clients. Moanna strives to be conscientious of her client's time and money and believes communication is key.
